GORGE

I had seen signs since ROMA for CARAVON GORGE & I decided to pull in & see some nature, its a beautiful drive in as you get closer & closer to these huge cliff faces. I decided to do the hike to Boolimba Bluff to get up high & see the view. Going into the gorge had this weird feeling I guess its the natural instinct going into a gorge, Its a natural choke point. I hiked further in until I reached the first ladder it was now a slow climb upwards & by the time I was at the top I was sweating. It was well worth it, the view was incredible, as far as you could see just nature something that is rare to see. It really hit me hard how awe inspiring the view was. Well worth the detour.

HEBEL HOTEL

As I crossed into QLD the heavens opened, the first rain I had seen since I was in VICTORIA. I pulled over at the Hebel Hotel & upon seeing DIESEL at $2.73 I filled up. A backpacker came out & said I can camp around the back if I want. I pulled in & developed some film before heading into the pub. It was an old school country pub with the collection of t-shirts, hats, foreign money, covering the walls. Three guys were there buying takeaway booze $300 worth. After they left the backpacker said that was tense, last week one of those guys threatened to kill me after

I wouldn't give him a tab. I asked for a beer, "BLACK FISH" or "WHITE FISH", I'd never heard these names for Great Northern supercrisp & original but it made sense. He asked if Melbourne is as bad as everyone says, I laughed & said it's no worse than anywhere else. A few customers came in for a slab of beer & a schooner. He told me there is a bucks party tomorrow night it's going to be busy, I told him I'll make sure I'm out of here before then. I walked across the road & got a burger for dinner, These 2 buildings were the whole town & acted as a general store & post office. Later on I went back in the the hotel & it had a handful of characters having a quiet beer. A new backpacker behind the bar, a FINNISH girl, she told me she was enjoying seeing the real Australia & saw a BROWN SNAKE the other day. I told her the FINKE RIVER RALLY is looking for volunteers & could be fun. I left one of my zines & hit the hay.

CRASH

This monument commemorates the 19 servicemen who on the 16th of November 1943 were killed in an air crash during WWII. A US Army Air Corps Dakota C47 manned by 4 American crew & an American sergeant was enroute for DARWIN to BRISBANE carrying 14 Australian soldiers. Departing Batchelor it had made stops at DALY WATERS & CLONCURRY. The aircraft is thought to have encountered a violent electrical storm & broke up mid air. The crash site was found 2 days later with a watch found stopped at the time of the crash at 4:25pm.

FUEL

The war continues to drag on, coming up to a month of war. The egos involved insuring this could be long lasting but more worryingly could escalate at any moment. I don't know what I should do, change plans, continue on, no-one knows once again we are all forced to live in the present. The knock on effects will hit soon & what will that look like. Will I get stuck somewhere?
